

So Kiss Me Already, Herschel Gertz!

All the info you could ever want to know! (DVD available on request!)

Artist Statement/Show Description:

Dear Lenore,

Please, please PLEASE help me get out of here! Today we had to choose ACTIVITIES. Every single one of them has to do with Judaism, or Israel, or both. I tried to pick the things that seemed the LEAST Jewish, but I still ended up with “A Nature Walk With Moses”, “Torah: Issues and Applications”, and “The Ancient Biblical Art of Macrame”. We aren’t allowed to listen to anything except Hebrew! music until the last day of camp, when there’s a COSTUME DANCE, and they’ll play normal music for us as a SPECIAL TREAT.

By then, I will be dead.

Love,

Amy ☺

Milwaukee, Wisconsin. 1986. Amy has a plan for her 15th summer: Transform from total dorkwad to Material Girl. Build This City on rock and roll. And pine for her unrequited love Ross Buckman until he sees her True Colors shining through. Instead, her parents ship her off for eight weeks to uber-Jewish Camp L’Chaim, where “even the mosquitoes wear yarmulkes!” How Amy survives as the pork chop in an all-Kosher world “combines poetry, comedy, pathos and plain good storytelling (--The Halifax Herald)”.

So Kiss Me Already, Herschel Gertz is the second solo show from Amy Salloway, creator of the 2003/2004 Fringe Festival hit, Does This Monologue Make Me Look Fat? and 2007’s Circumference. Based loosely on her own childhood experience, So Kiss Me Already... uses the quirky magnifying glass of summer camp to view the universal issues of adolescent awkwardness, social rejection and connection, the search for spirituality, and the pain and joy of growing up.

Writes Cincinnati Enquirer critic Jackie Demaline, “Salloway is smart, funny, observant and honest, with a mind that zooms into orbit around a yet-to-be-discovered planet”. Says CBC Manitoba, “You’ll relate to Amy Salloway’s tender and very funny coming-of-age comedy regardless of summer camp experience or religious persuasion – (it’s) universal and charming enough to win anyone over.” The Winnipeg Sun calls Herschel Gertz “sweet, funny, busting with youthful energy”. And from CityBeat’s Tom McElfresh, “A MUST SEE. Amy Salloway belongs to a rare and crafty class of clowns: she writes comedy as deftly and as perceptively as she performs it. To see her new (show) is to wonder which to admire more, her original ideas or her warm, winning revelation of them.”

Technical Needs:

So Kiss Me Already, Herschel Gertz! comes in two versions – 60 minutes and 72 minutes (the difference mainly lying in the pace and amount of Jewish content; the 72-minute show includes more storyline about Judaism and the summer camp environment). Both versions contain about 18 light cues and 26 sound cues; the lighting cues are optional, but the sound cues are necessary to the plot of the show.

The technical and staging needs of the show are as follows:

- A playing space at least 15 feet wide and 12 feet deep;
- Lighting that will illuminate the entire playing area (this can be regular ceiling lights, or actual theatre lighting instruments);
- A CD player with easy pushbutton operation (play, pause, forward, etc.) and display, plugged into a full-room amplification system;
- A sturdy, squarish upholstered living-room style chair;
- A plain, short wooden backless bench;
- A technician to run both lights and sound, or TWO Technicians, one for each component. (The show does not come with its own technician.)
- Three hours to run a tech rehearsal.

“Herschel Gertz” would work BEST on a floor-level or only-slightly-raised stage where the audience is close to the performance area (that is, not huge, distant, elevated prosceniums). However, it can be adapted to many types of spaces.

The show has some moments of “cursing” (which can be toned down if necessary) and sexual references; it is appropriate for ages 14 and up, and should be advertised as such.

Booking Information:

So Kiss Me Already, Herschel Gertz! can be booked for as many or as few performances as meet your needs; there’s no minimum audience size, and no rules regarding ticket prices – you’re welcome to use the show as a fundraiser, benefit, ticketed presentation, free event, whatever you’d like, as long as performer fees are covered.

These include:

- Creative writing/ creative non-fiction
- Monologue and storytelling basics
- Turning personal story into solo performance
- The Matt Smith Original Performance Workshop (a 3-6 hour progression of writing and improv exercises designed to lead participants in brainstorming and creating original, autobiographical material for the page or the stage...REALLY fun, and a fabulous, relaxed way to get to the heart of active, charismatic personal narrative)
- Improvisation – long or short form, basic to advanced
- Augusto Boal’s Theatre of the Oppressed games and exercises.

When you’re ready to book a show, you’ll be provided with a Technical Rider and Contact, which detail show needs, publicity information and fee schedules in greater depth.

Artist Bio:

Actor/writer Amy Salloway has been called “hilariously self-loathing”, “gifted at creating comedy from pain and embarrassment”, and “the queen of self-deprecation”, and she takes all of that as a huge compliment. Amy was born in Boston, grew up in Milwaukee, and has lived most of her adult years in Seattle and Minneapolis. Much of her acting and writing work has been in the areas of issue-oriented, children's and educational theatre, which explains why her resume is filled with roles like "Mosquito #2", "Spawning Salmon" and "Broccoli". In August of 2003 Amy created her first solo show, Does This Monologue Make Me Look Fat?, about body image, sex and frozen food, which debuted in the Minnesota Fringe Theatre Festival and made Lavender Magazine's annual 'Best of' list for "Best Solo Performance". Since then, she's written two more shows – 2005's "So Kiss Me Already, Herschel Gertz!", and "Circumference" (based on her year-long quest to get gastric bypass surgery) in 2006/2007 – and now all three pieces tour to Fringes, solo festivals, theatres, performance events and booked gigs in the US, Canada and beyond. Their cumulative stops have included the UNO Festival in Victoria, BC; Oh Solo Mio in London, ON; Cape May Stage's Flying Solo Series; Open Stage Theatre in Harrisburg, PA; the Manhattan JCC; Six Figure Theatre's Artists of Tomorrow series in NYC; the Baltimore Creative Alliance; the Columbus GLBT Theatre Festival (where Amy won "Best Script" and "Best Solo Show"); the International TeatroNetto Festival of Solo Performance in Jaffa, Israel, and the Fringes in Thunder Bay, Halifax (Best of Venue), Ottawa, Orlando, Calgary, Cincinnati (Critic's Pick), Victoria, Vancouver (Pick of the Fringe), Edmonton, the Berkshires and Winnipeg (Best of Fest, twice).

Amy's performed her work on MPR and CBC radio; she's also been an instructor and playwright for Interact Center for the Arts – a theatre company for artists with disabilities -- where she served as lead writer for two company-developed musicals: "Future Perfect", and "The Broken Brain Summit". She was awarded a VSA Artist Recognition Grant in 2007.
